MALARIA TROUBLES ACOSTA

Shanks May Replace Moeller When Left-Handed Pitcher Opposes Nationals.

By THOMAS KIRBY.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 17.—Clark Griffith said today that next spring he would once more have Carl Cashion in the training camp in a final effort to make a major league out of the big pitcher. Cashion was going along fairly well for Montreal when he encountered an injury. Now Griffith wants him to rest until spring. The Chicago club was here a couple of hours after the arrival of the Nationals, and Jim Callahan denied all knowledge of the report that he is to be succeeded as manager by Frank Chance. Pitt, the infielder from Toronto, is expected to report to Griffith today.

The Nationals found St. Louis proverbially hot, but far from so sizzling as on the earlier trip. In his last two starts Jim Shaw suffered from a severe strain on the thigh of his right leg. Several times he stopped pitching until the pain disappeared, but yesterday the attack on the muscles developed, until today the pitcher is limping badly. It may be that Shaw will be forced to withdraw his next regular turn in the box.

Acosta has contracted a mild attack of malaria, and the hole of yesterday remained in his berth during the time some trip to Missouri. Today he was feeling considerably better, and Trainer Martin gave the foreigner his consent to put on a uniform.

This town is as mad over the Giants-Braves fight as they are in the East, with the same feeling prevailing—practically everyone pulling for the Braves.

It would not be surprising from now to the end of the season if Griffith should be found using Shanks in right field every time the opposition springs a left-handed pitcher.

Moeller is rated as a man who can hit from either side of the plate, but far from effective as a right-handed batter and nothing could be lost in playing Shanks in such emergencies as he is quite as good a fielder as the regular right gardener.

Bill Lee, who was with the Griffins at Charlottesville in the spring, comes to the St. Louis Browns by draft.

The father of Miller is here from Tennessee to see his son play.

Walter Johnson brought his wife along and the couple will probably make a flying trip to Coffeyville before the Nationals leave.

Johnson is to pitch Friday.

There will be a double-header Saturday.

The Giant first and second men crossed the goal in the first inning and the fans had little trouble with their prizes thereafter.
